Civilian body to oversee police

- New office to investigate police-related deaths, serious incidents
- Government expects body to be operational by end of the year

MATT KIELTYKA
@METRONEWS.CA

British Columbia will get a civilian body to investigate police-related incidents by the end of this year.

Solicitor General Shirley Bond introduced Bill 12 in the legislature yesterday, which paves the way for an Independent Investigation Office to be set up — a key recommendation of the Braidwood Commission that looked into the death of Robert Dziekanski.

The civilian-led office will be tasked with investigating police-related incidents involving death or serious harm, and will be able to conduct investigations involving other weighty incidents.

Bond said the office will oversee all police in British Columbia, including the RCMP.

"I believe it sets a new standard for civilian-led police investigation and accountability," Bond announced in the legislature.

The body, which will report directly to the attorney general's office, is expected to be operational by the end of 2011.

The government is currently assessing where its office will be, along with budget and staffing requirements.

B.C. Civil Liberties Association executive director David Eby said the announcement marks a historic day for the province.

"It's finally happened after years and years of advocacy," he said. "This is a historic day, especially for the RCMP. This is the first time they've fallen under the mandate of a provincial body."

Eby said the BCCLA's two main concerns seem to have been addressed by making sure the federal police force falls under the office's jurisdiction, and by enforcing a transition period for the agency to become completely civilian-led.

The biggest challenge now, according to Eby, will be to make sure the office is adequately funded.

"If they can't make it out to incidents, then we'll be back at police investigating themselves," he said.

Simon Fraser University criminologist Robert Gordon said too much is riding on the plan for the government to short-change the new agency.

"It's a credibility issue," he said. "It's important the government is seen not just to be passing this through the legislature, but ensures it flourishes in the coming years."

Both Eby and Gordon said the early success of the office will hinge on who is chosen as the civilian director.

Family demands changes

The family of 22-year-old Kassandra Kaulius, who was killed May 3 when she was hit by an alleged drunk driver, held a press conference yesterday calling for tougher drunk-driving laws in the province, including 10-year sentences for drunk driving causing death. Story, page 3.

Live at Squamish gives bands big break

Two local bands have been chosen to perform alongside groups like Weezer and Metric at this year's Live at Squamish music festival.

The Belle Game and the Proper Villains were selected from five acts, shortlisted by fans, by a panel of judges that included Metro's Kristen Thompson.

"(The contest) was really fun and nerve-racking," said Katrina Jones, the Belle Game's pianist and backup vocalist. "We're constantly on the site and refreshing the page to check how many votes we had. We're really happy that so many people came through for us."

Mike Harris, vocalist and keyboardist for the Proper Villains, said it was exciting to go up against other experienced bands in the contest even though his band has only been together for eight months.

"It doesn't matter how long a band has been together, because we've been musicians our whole lives ... but (being in the top five) speaks a lot for our music (and we see) a lot of people are enjoying what we're doing," Harris said.

Festival organizers are giving the winners all the usual perks, including $250 to cover fuels costs.

The festival will be held Aug. 20 and 21 at Squamish's Logger Sports Grounds. For tickets or information, visit liveatsquamish.com.

One family's grief

Markita Kaulius said she spent Mother's Day choosing the clothes her daughter would wear when she was cremated.

"I pray to God none of you ever have to experience this," said Kaulius, the mother of the 22-year-old student killed by a suspected drunk driver in Surrey.

Her daughter Kassandra was returning home from a softball game in Cloverdale May 3 when a woman allegedly ran a red light and smashed into her vehicle.

The Kaulius family — who displayed an urn containing Kassandra's ashes and mementos, including photos and medals, at a press conference yesterday in Surrey — is demanding an automatic two-year driving suspension for impaired driving and 10 years in jail for anyone arrested for impaired driving causing death.

The 34-year-old suspect was given a 12-month driving suspension, Surrey RCMP said.

Cody Schlamb, the victim's boyfriend of eight years, said he was robbed of his future.

"I'm now forced to learn to live life again," Schlamb said. "My whole future is gone at the hands of someone else.... They took away what she was."

Laurel Middelaer, whose four-year-old daughter Alexa was killed three years ago by a drunk driver, joined the Kaulius family in a show of support and in remembrance of the anniversary of her daughter's death.

Yes, the Queen wore green

Marksmen keep rooftop watch on monarch's historic Dublin visit

Sometimes words aren't necessary.

That was the case yesterday when Queen Elizabeth, 85, placed a wreath in Dublin to honour Irish rebels who lost their lives fighting for freedom — from Britain.

There were no apologies, no acknowledgment of past wrongdoings — no words at all,

The Queen, resplendent in a cloak of emerald green, became the first British monarch to set foot in Dublin for a century.

Her four-day visit is designed to show that the bitter enmity of Ireland's war of independence 90 years ago has been replaced by friendship.

Helicopters and fixed-wing aircraft patrolled the skies. Marksmen kept watch on rooftops.

Streets were cleared to ensure no anti-British extremist could get close to the Queen.

No civilian aircraft were permitted over the city centre.

Overnight, a pipe bomb was planted in a bus outside Dublin.

Three hoax devices were found in the city.

More assaults on aboriginal women: Study

A new study says the rate of violent incidents reported by aboriginal women was triple that of non-aboriginal women in 2009.

Statistics Canada says nearly 67,000, or 13 per cent of aboriginal women aged 15 or older, reported they had been the victim of violent crimes.

Violent crimes include sexual assault, robbery and physical assault.

The agency says 223 of every 1,000 aboriginal women reported incidents of violence, while the rate among non-aboriginal women was 84 in 1,000.

Most violent incidents reported were committed by males acting alone.

The number of native women who reported violence by a current or former spouse was about two-and-a-half times higher than the proportion of non-aboriginal women.

Hopefuls eye new era at IMF

▶ Dominique Strauss Kahn

The race to succeed Dominique Strauss-Kahn as head of the International Monetary Fund stepped up yesterday, along with pressure on him to resign.

The IMF board could move soon to oust Strauss-Kahn if he insists on remaining in his post while jailed on charges of trying to rape a New York City maid, analysts suggested. Support for Strauss-Kahn, a Frenchman, eroded even in Europe. Strauss-Kahn has said nothing about his future at the IMF. He was denied bail and is in a New York jail.

Wind Mobile and feds appealing court ruling

▶ Has almost 300,000 customers ▶ Plans to be Canadian mobile leader

DARREN CALABRESE/THE CANADIAN PRESS

▶ Wind Mobile chairman Anthony Lacavera is seen at a press conference in Toronto in 2009.

Wind Mobile will be at the centre of a legal case today that questions how the federal cabinet intervened to allow the mobile phone carrier to operate in Canada, despite a CRTC ruling that decided it was foreign-owned.

"Obviously, we will fight in the courts as far as we can," Wind Mobile chairman Anthony Lacavera said of the case, which will be heard in the Federal Court of Appeal in Ottawa.

Wind Mobile and the federal government are appealing a decision that cabinet overstepped its authority when it let the Toronto telecom company go into business in December 2009 after the national communications regulator had already ruled it wasn't Canadian-owned.

Lacavera also said it could mean taking the case to the Supreme Court, or going back to the CRTC to satisfy ownership requirements if he loses the appeal case.

"At the end of the day, there's no scenario where Wind gets shut down," Lacavera said.

Wind Mobile says it wants to be Canada's fourth major wireless carrier after Rogers, Bell and Telus. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Greece seeks payback delay

Greece's private creditors may be asked to give the struggling country more time to repay its debts, the European Union's top economic official said yesterday, marking an important shift in the region's attitudes towards solving the crisis.

Until this week, European officials had denied that extending debt repayments had even been discussed, for fear of undermining market confidence. Many investors are convinced a change in Greece's debt deals is inevitable at some point.

"A voluntary extension of loan maturities could ... be examined" together with asking banks and other investors to maintain their exposure to Greece, the EU's Monetary Affairs Commissioner Olli Rehn told journalists after a two-day meeting with European finance ministers.

Before any such move is considered, however, Rehn said the Greek government was expected to announce in coming days new spending cuts and reforms to make sure it can lower its budget deficit to the targets set out in its bailout program. At its current rate, Greece is expected to post a budget deficit of 9.5 per cent this year, more than three times the EU's limit.

To meet those targets, Greece needs to step up its $50-billion privatization program, selling at least C15 billion worth of national assets in companies and real-estate holdings this year and next, Rehn said.

Netflix overtakes surfing online

Popularity could pose risks to the profits of Canadian cable companies

Move over web surfing. Netflix movies now take up more of the Internet pipes going into North American homes.

A study published yesterday by Sandvine Inc. shows that Netflix movies and TV shows account for nearly 30 per cent of traffic into homes during peak evening hours, compared with less than 17 per cent for web browsing.

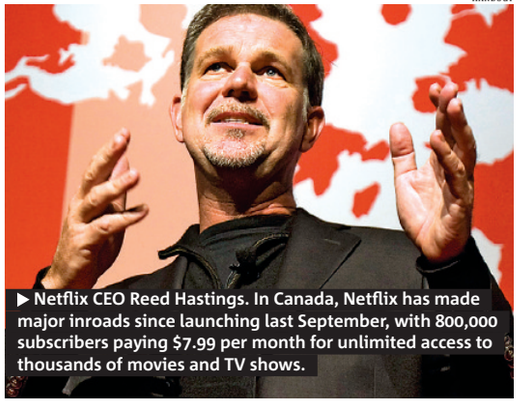
Only about one-quarter of homes with broadband subscribe to Netflix, but watching movies and TV shows online takes up a lot of bandwidth compared with web surfing, email and practically every other Internet activity except file sharing and videoconferencing.

As late as last year, both web surfing and peer-to-peer file sharing — mainly the illegal trading of copyrighted movies — were each larger than Netflix's traffic.

Sandvine makes equipment that helps cable and phone companies manage their Internet delivery systems. It collected data from unidentified customers for the survey. It has previously been linked to Comcast Corp., the largest Internet service provider in the U.S. Sandvine says its data should be representative of overall home Internet use.

The number of Netflix customers is growing quickly, to 23.6 million subscribers in the U.S. and Canada as of the end of March. The growing use of the streaming service is good news for the company, which is trying to reduce what it spends to mail DVDs. The rental video business in Canada totalled about $970 million in 2010, down 12 per cent from the previous year, says Toronto-based Convergence Consulting Group. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

HANDOUT



▶ Netflix CEO Reed Hastings. In Canada, Netflix has made major inroads since launching last September, with 800,000 subscribers paying $7.99 per month for unlimited access to thousands of movies and TV shows.

REAL ESTATE JUMP

Canada's housing prices rise

The national average home price rose by eight per cent last month even as housing sales fell by 14.7 per cent from the year before, according to data released yesterday.

Home prices jumped to $372,544 compared to last April — the third consecutive month in which the national average price rose by eight per cent from year-ago levels, the Canadian Real Estate Association said. Meanwhile, the number of previously occupied homes sold in April fell to 17,230 from 18,745 a year ago.

The national housing has been skewed recently due to a surge in sales of multimillion-dollar properties in the Greater Vancouver area.

Demand for those properties fell in April compared to March, but was offset by fewer sales of lower-priced properties. "Changes to mortgage regulations that took effect in April 2011 likely sidelined a number of first-time homebuyers," said Gregory Klump, CREA's chief economist.

Declines were largest in some of Canada's most expensive and active markets, including Toronto, Vancouver and British Columbia's Fraser Valley.

Seven dead after mine invasion

Seven people were killed and a dozen more were injured after intruders tried to steal ore from a gold mine in Tanzania, African Barrick Gold PLC said yesterday.

The company, controlled by Toronto-based Barrick Gold Corp., said 800 "criminal intruders" invaded its North Mara mine when police were called Monday.

The group reportedly attacked police with machetes, rocks and hammers. The North Mara mine is in Tanzania, about 20 kilometres south of the Kenyan border.

We love our BBs — and texting too

Canada may be the birthplace of the BlackBerry and mobile email, and boast heavy users of Facebook, but it hasn't stopped us from engaging in a relatively old-school form of electronic messaging — texting.

The Canadian Wireless Telecommunications Association said 56.4 billion texts were sent in Canada in 2010, up 60 per cent from the previous year.

LinkedIn shares climbing to new, pricier highs

LinkedIn is raising the price range on its shares to $42 to $45 US apiece from $32 to $35 apiece. Shares are expected to begin trading tomorrow. The new cost means LinkedIn could be valued at more than $4 billion after going public, the biggest Internet IPO since Google's debut in 2004. At the middle of the new proposed range, the IPO would raise about $341 million.

ADD A BOY NAMED SUE TO THE LIST

JUST SAYIN' ...

PAUL SULLIVAN
METRO

An Israeli couple recently named their new baby girl Like, as in the like button on Facebook.

Like, is that not the dumbest thing you ever heard?

The same couple also named their other daughters Pie, as in lemon meringue, and Dvash, which is Hebrew for honey.

The parents, Lior and Vardit Adler, say they wanted a unique and modern name for their newborn and Like sounded "modern and innovative." Lior told an Israeli newspaper that Like is the modern equivalent of the name Ahova (Love).

No, it isn't. It's a button. On a piece of software. It's a ploy designed to create a digital pattern allowing Facebook to serve up ads that match your profile. It's about the money, Honey.

At least they didn't name their daughter Zuckerberg, after the founder of Facebook.

That would Zuck.

"The parents, Lior and Vardit Adler, say they wanted a unique and modern name for their newborn and Like sounded 'modern and innovative.' Lior told an Israeli newspaper that Like is the modern equivalent of the name Ahova (Love)."

Now Like, Pie and Dvash Adler will have to spend the rest of their lives in expensive therapy, doing battle with the trauma of their names.

They will be joined in the waiting room by Facebook, an Egyptian whose dad wanted to honour Facebook's role in the Arab Spring. How about a nice plaque at the front door instead of laying the burden of Facebook Jamal Ibrahim on your poor little tyke?

The irony of Like is that her parents don't even really "like" Facebook. Lior has fewer than 120 Facebook friends. Which still seems like a lot to me. I have 131 Facebook friends and have trouble keeping up. None of them are named Like.

The question is why do people do this to perfect innocents who can't defend themselves? In their quest for 15 minutes of cheap fame, Lior and Vardit have condemned Like, Pie and Dvash to spend the rest of their lives spelling and explaining their names to strangers, getting teased mercilessly in the schoolyard by bullies with conventional names, trying to get their names legally changed or using their middle names (which are not, hopefully, Recommend, Edit or Write On Her Wall).

It's child abuse and it's hardly rare. It may seem cute at the time, but remember that the apple (Pie?) of your eye has to wear it for the rest of his or her life. Life is hard enough without being called Pie.

Same goes for the current crop of kids named after vampires, politicians and Lady Gaga.

Worth mentioning

LONDON. An Egyptian princess who lived more than 3,500 years ago is the oldest known person to have had clogged arteries, dispelling the myth heart disease is a product of modern society, a new study says.

To determine how common heart disease was in ancient Egypt, scientists performed computer scans on 52 mummies in Cairo and the United States. Among those that still had heart tissue, 44 had chunks of calcium stuck to their arteries — indicating clogging.

Adel Allam, a cardiology professor at Al Azhar University in Cairo, who led the study with Gregory Thomas, director of nuclear cardiology education at the University of California in Irvine, found the Egyptian princess Ahmose-Meryet-Amon, who lived in Thebes (now Luxor) between 1540 and 1550 BC, had calcium deposits in two main coronary arteries, making her the oldest mummy found with heart disease. The princess' father and brother were both pharaohs.

Common sense has left the building

Ballpoint pen chewers, take note: The cap in your mouth can obstruct breathing if swallowed.

Common sense? Apparently for speakers of French, Spanish and German. The warning appears only in the English section of the multilingual instructions from the pen manufacturer, according to the creator of the Wacky Warning Labels contest.

The pen cap caveat is among five finalists announced yesterday in the 14th annual contest that calls out silly warning labels and rails against lawsuits it deems frivolous.

Other finalists include "Does not supply oxygen" on a dust mask and "Avoid drowning. Remove safety cover from spa when in use" on a hot tub cover. A more high-concept warning making the list is this label for a leather handgun holster designed to look like a personal digital assistant: "For gun only, not a functional day planner."

Another warning tells would-be bicycle riders, "The action depicted in this brochure is potentially dangerous. The riders seen are experts or professionals."

Depp and Bruckheimer have hinted the Pirates franchise could go on indefinitely, like James Bond

PETER MOUNTAIN/THE ASSOICATED PRESS/DISNEY,

▶ Johnny Depp portrays Captain Jack Sparrow in a scene from Pirates of the Caribbean: On Stranger Tides. Movie producer Jerry Bruckheimer has said of Depp: "He created the franchise, that character. Made it come alive. He is Pirates of the Caribbean."

Ahoy all over again: Jack sails fresh waters

New pirates, new ship, new treasure — same old Jack Sparrow.

After a trilogy that hauled in $2.7 billion worldwide, Pirates of the Caribbean relaunches with On Stranger Tides, a fresh start for the buccaneer-blockbuster franchise starring the franchise's one indispensable ingredient — Johnny Depp as Capt. Jack.

With Jack's beloved ship, the Black Pearl, in a strange state of dry-dock, he and his mates sail in search of the fountain of youth aboard Blackbeard's terrifying vessel, the Queen Anne's Revenge.

Hollywood rarely messes with a good thing to this extent, but the filmmakers are banking that audiences will be anxious to follow in Jack's wake as he storms into uncharted seas.

Unlike the trilogy that grew out of 2003's blockbuster The Curse of the Black Pearl, the new Pirates installment is a stand-alone story, said producer Jerry Bruckheimer.

But even before On Stranger Tides hits theatres, Bruckheimer has a script for a fifth Pirates movie in the works. That sounds like a commander confident he's on the right course, even before leaving port. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Way Back
Genre: Drama/Adventure
Director: Peter Weir
Stars: Jim Sturgess, Ed Harris and Colin Farrell

It's World War II, it's winter at a Siberian prison, and Mother Nature carries a bigger whip than any Stalin stooge. The director is least certain when depicting the interior struggle these men face, leaving it to us to infer most of it. PETER HOWELL

Daydream Nation
Genre: Drama/Romance
Director: Michael Goldbach
Stars: Kat Dennings, Reece Thompson and Josh Lucas
◍◍½

Like the trippy 1988 Sonic Youth album that informs its title and mood, Daydream Nation is caught between generations and lost in time and space.

Writer/director Mike Goldbach conjures a claustrophobic small town where teens and adults share sex and angst, a serial killer lazily stalks his prey and a stoner's haze blends with the smoke of a perpetual industrial fire. Caught halfway between comedy and drama, it's a movie that resists definition. The lead character tells us the film will detail "the year that nearly everything happened to me." Goldbach takes this to heart, packing Daydream Nation with enough characters and incidents to fuel three movies. But he's also brave enough, and inventive enough, to give us an unlikeable protagonist and to make the serial-killer angle a subplot rather than the main concern. PETER HOWELL

▶ Early swashbuckling: Erroll Flynn dazzled as a pirate on the silver screen in 1935.

Pirates of the Caribbean: On Stranger Tides co-star Ian McShane suggests that Johnny Depp is "paid more than the national debt of most countries" to play the tipsy freebooter Captain Jack Sparrow.

Depp may be the highest paid movie pirate to ever sail the seven seas, but he's not the only celluloid sea dog.

Movie pirates were popular on the silent screen — they swashbuckled as early as 1908's Treasure Island — but it wasn't until Errol Flynn played the title role in 1935's Captain Blood that pirates became screen staples. "No one can beat Erroll Flynn," says Under The Black Flag: The Romance & Reality Of Life Among The Pirates author David Cordingley. "He has the edge over all the other movie pirates."

Coming close is Robert Newton as Long John Silver in Treasure Island. One of the best live action Disney films of the 1950s, it is the movie that originated the Cornish accent that has become the accepted pirate speak in dozens of movies to follow. For a sample check out the voice of The Simpsons' Captain McAllister. It's based on Newton's pirate portrayal.

Less conventional is Walter Matthau's take on Captain Thomas Bartholomew Red in Roman Polanski's Pirates. The planned followup to the director's massive hit Chinatown (it actually took 12 years to make it to the screen) was to have starred Jack Nicholson but, like the buccaneer he might have portrayed in the movie, the star was money hungry.

According to the director, when he asked Nicholson exactly how much he wanted, the actor simply said, "I want more."

His replacement, Matthau, redefines grizzly in his depiction of Captain Red, but the film didn't meet with good reviews.

"There hasn't been a pirate movie in a long time," wrote Roger Ebert, "and after Roman Polanski's Pirates, there may not be another one for a very long time."What look at movie pirates would be complete without a mention of singing and dancing sea dogs? There are lots of pirate musicals but one of the best, and most overlooked, is The Pirate starring Judy Garland and Gene Kelly.

With direction by Vincente Minnelli (father of Liza) and songs by Cole Porter, the story of a young girl in love with a man pretending to be a pirate earned an Oscar nomination for Original Music Score, but lost out to another Judy Garland musical, Easter Parade.

MOTHER NATURE? yeah, WE TAPPED THAT

At Iceberg Vodka purity is our passion. That's why we searched the globe for the purest source of water known to man and Mother Nature: Icebergs. This pristine source, trapped for 12,000 years, has so few impurities they are measured in parts per quadrillion. This unequalled purity is why fearless Newfoundlanders brave the perilous waters of "iceberg alley" to harvest our bergs and it's why our vodka is the most expensively produced in the world. And it appears our passion has not gone unnoticed. In fact, it has inspired international taste panels from Chicago to Cannes to award Iceberg Vodka the highest honours for taste and value, year after year. The fruits of our obsession are your reward. Superior taste and unsurpassable smoothness, without equal.

Charlie Sheen disappointed

Despite his showy and sarcastic reaction to the news that Ashton Kutcher will replace him on Two and a Half Men, Charlie Sheen is actually "devastated" by the news, sources close to the former star tells Popeater.

"He really thought that he would be invited back," a source says.

"After years of suffering no consequences for his behaviour, why would he think anything else? Finally it has sunk in that he doesn't live by different rules to everyone else. Actions do have a consequences."

Aniston loses a loved one

TOUGH LOSS Jennifer Aniston suffered the loss of her dog, Norman, recently, her rep confirms to People magazine. The 15-year-old Corgi-terrier mix passed away "a few weeks ago," according to the rep.

"He was an old dog and it was just his time."

Norman often travelled with Aniston, she told the magazine last July.

"He's my baby boy. Norman goes with me on location – I've got to take Norman," she said.

▶ The Parliament Buildings are some of Canada's most architecturally stunning and marry modern Gothic revival with Victorian High Gothic.

Capital idea for Canada Day

Grab your biggest hat, a cup of tea and come watch the parade in Ottawa for Will and Kate's first royal Canadian visit As an added bonus, you get to spend Canada Day in the capital

Sure, watching the royal wedding curled up on the couch in a pair of PJs was fun, but gawking at Kate and Wills up close with thousands would be so much more Facebook worthy. Imagine the braggy album title: "Me and the Duke and Duchess of Cambridge on Parliament Hill, July 1, 2011."

The newlyweds picked Canada as their first official trip as a couple, arriving in time for the Canada Day festivities in Ottawa. Kate Middleton has never visited Canada, so Ottawa at its party-hardiest will be her first taste.

For those who want to be part of the welcoming party in the national capital, there are many ways to give the trip a royal twist and many of the activities are free.

Get a good vantage point of their Highnesses

Based on past royal visits, the landau generally arrives for the beginning of festivities around midday. It travels westward on Wellington Street before arriving on Parliament Hill. The best areas will be along the Hill's central pathways.

Visit the Parliament Buildings

A big white tent between the Centre and East Blocks of Parliament Hill is the point of departure for free tours during the summer months. Check parl.gc.ca/Visitors for information about the schedule.

Stop by the National War Memorial

King George VI and Queen Elizabeth unveiled the monument to those who served Canada in war in 1939, the first time a reigning monarch had visited Canada. In 2000, the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier was added to the site.

Check out Rideau Hall

Members of the Royal Family always stop by the Governor General's residence during official visits. The grounds have flower gardens, a play structure and wooded areas and are open from 8 a.m. until an hour before sunset.

Buy a fantastic hat

Now that fascinator has suddenly infiltrated the mainstream lexicon, buying a proper fancy hat or headpiece seems like a completely justified party expenditure.

New Brunswick-born Madeleine France Cormier's hat store in the Byward Market, Chapeaux de Madeleine, has seen a boom in business because of the royal wedding. Her little shop at 47 Clarence St. is chock-full of all manner of glam hats for all kinds of events, and her custom work with peacock feathers, ribbons, bird-cage veils and fabric petals ships across the country.

You dine by the light of an outdoor fire, sleep in a yurt and wake up for a safari to see antelope, zebras, rhinos, giraffes and camels.

When your adventure ends, you return to your car for the short trip back to the world outside — in Ohio.

It's all part of an experience offered at the Wilds, a sprawling wildlife conservation centre on nearly 4,000 hectares, or about two-thirds the size of Manhattan, about 130 kilometres east of Columbus.

Two years ago, the Wilds opened Nomad Ridge, an encampment of yurts — circular tents, perched on stilts anchored into the side of a wooded ridge.

The Wilds' nine "woodland yurts" are available May through October. The larger "grand yurt" with heat and air conditioning is available year-round.

B. FEINKNOPF/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

▶The Wilds, a sprawling eastern Ohio wildlife conservation center on nearly 10,000 acres, in Cumberland, Ohio. Located about 90 minutes from Columbus.

An overnight stay is packaged with dinner the night of arrival and breakfast the following morning created by a professional chef featuring Ohio game, produce and wines — plus a guided safari around the grounds to see a wide array of animals from either an enclosed bus (the Wilds prefers the term "transport") or an open-air vehicle. The experience is limited to adults 21 or older.

The free-roaming exotic animals are observed over the course of a couple of hours.

The Wilds is a partner with the Columbus Zoo, and conservation of endangered species is part of its mission. Its animals include onagers, endangered horse-like animals native to Iran and other Middle Eastern and Asian countries. Two onagers were born at the Wilds last summer.

"I felt as if I had travelled a long way and was transported to another place even though it was only 2 1/2 hours from my home on the outskirts of Circleville, Ohio," said Carolyn Seitz, a former teacher who enjoyed a yurt stay and safari last year with her husband, to celebrate his birthday.

Seitz's reaction is common, said former executive director Evan Blumer.

"We're not fooling ourselves, you're not in Africa, you're not in Asia, but it's sure a heck of a lot easier, a whole lot faster and doesn't require a whole bunch of vaccinations," he said, adding that the experience is an amazing escape without having to go too far from home.

Cool, colourful San Fran

Alex Charlow was born in North California and works, surfs and promotes his band (Agent 126) in San Francisco In the last five years he's moved around and experienced cuisine and nightlife in different neighbourhoods.

San Francisco is an interesting place with extraordinary traditions and a cosmopolitan lifestyle. I like the energy. I love exploring each neighborhood and celebrating it's diversity. No matter what you're into, San Francisco has it. Want to spend your evenings with wine fanatics, sipping every wine from Sonoma and Napa County?

We've got the perfect wine bar for you. Want to kite surf in some of the best spots in the world? We've got that too. Want to see if you've got what it takes to escape from Alcatraz? We've got a swim event you might want to check out.

Want to wander the streets wearing hot pants, a sombrero, and show your appreciation for unicorns? We've probably got a group for that too.

ALEX CHARLOW

Pier 39

First time?

You can't experience San Francisco in one weekend, and attempting to do so means missing out on a lot of what makes San Francisco so special.

What you should do on your first occasion depends on when you arrive.

If you're here in May you must experience Bay to Breakers, a marathon extending from the San Francisco Bay to the Pacific Ocean. It's the city's largest celebration, with thousands of San Franciscans dressed in costume for the longest party of the year. Otherwise, nothing can compare to an afternoon of munching on crab, walking the span of the Golden Gate Bridge, sailing to Alcatraz, and watching the seals play at Pier 39, all in the morning! At night your best bet is to explore the hot spots. Each neighborhood in San Francisco has it's own unique flavour, but Russian Hill, the Marina, Haight, the Mission, and North Beach are all excellent options.

Shopping!

If you've got some cash burning a hole in your pocket, head over to Union Square , a shopping district that has every store you could imagine. If you've got the hole in your pocket, but no cash, head over to the corner of Haight and Ashbury and buy some unique vintage threads.

Eat

When it comes to wining and dining, where to go depends on what you like.

I'm a seafood nut, so Pacific Catch in the Marina is my place of choice. Its Japanese fusion produces some amazing salmon rice bowls, complete with seaweed salad, avocados, sprouts, and more (pacificcatch.com).

If you're near the waterfront at Embarcadero you have to experience the fresh Dungeness crab, or table up at Boudin's and enjoy a delicious fresh clam chowder in a turtle shaped bread bowl (boudinbakery.com).

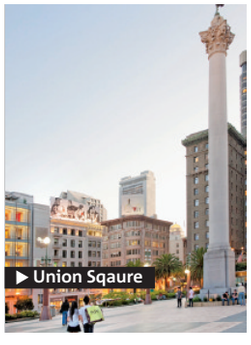
Alcatraz

Go out

I'm a beer guy, but if you like cocktails you have go to Lion Pub in Pac Heights. There isn't a sign, and the bar is hard to spot, but once you get in you're treated to fresh, hand-pumped greyhounds and raspberry mojitos that are unmatched. If you need a secondary spot hit up Bourbon and Branch, a prohibition era bar that maintains the 1920s vibe. When you get to the door just say "library" and you'll be whisked away behind a secret bookshelf and sipping authentic gimlets in no time (bourbonandbranch.com).



Union Sqaure

Been there before?

If you've already been and are looking for a new experience, try the night tour of Alcatraz. There is nothing spookier than wandering the dark hallways of the prison while listening to the cell bars clinking on your audio tour.

If you're afraid of the dark, catch the sunset from the outfield of AT&T Park with a Giants game, one of the most beautiful ballparks in the USA.

Finally, if you've done it all, head out to the House of Air in the Presidio and get your hop on, literally, it's a giant indoor trampoline park that features competitive dodgeball leagues on trampolines.

A light approach to seafood

Eric Ripert of New York City's famed Le Bernardin restaurant creates a salad of green papaya with shrimp and calamari that's perfect for spring

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS/ MATTHEW MEAD

▶ This salad blends a pungent fish sauce with lime juice.

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Ingredients:

- 125 ml (1/2 cup) lime juice
- 10 ml (2 tsp) sugar
- 15 ml (1 tbsp) fish sauce
- 45 ml (3 tbsp) olive oil
- 1 green papaya, peeled, seeded and julienned
- 1 small carrot, peeled and julienned
- 2 scallions, thinly sliced
- 1 jalapeno pepper, halved, seeded and thinly sliced
- 50 ml (1/4 cup) each fresh mint and cilantro, julienned
- 60 ml (4 tbsp) canola oil, divided
- Sea salt and black pepper
- 285 g (10 oz) medium shrimp, peeled and deveined
- 285 g (10 oz) small calamari tubes, cleaned and sliced into rings

Preparation:

1. In a bowl, whisk lime juice, sugar, fish sauce and olive oil. Add green papaya, carrot, scallions, jalapeno, mint and cilantro; toss to coat evenly. Season to taste with salt and pepper. Let marinate for 5 mins.
2. In skillet over medium-high, heat 30 ml (2 tbsp) of the canola oil. Season shrimp with salt and pepper, add to skillet and sear shrimp for 2 minutes per side. Transfer to paper towel-lined plate.
3. Add remaining 30 ml (2 tbsp) of canola oil to skillet and return it to heat. When the oil is very hot, add calamari. Season with salt and pepper, quickly toss to cook calamari until they are just barely opaque, about 2 minutes.
4. Add shrimp and calamari to salad; toss to coat. Divide among 4 plates and serve.

How effective is sex education?

Open and honest communication always the way to go when it comes to talking to about sex

ISTOCK

▶ In a 2005 study, 43 per cent of Canadian teens aged 15 to 19 reported that they had had sex at least once.

Most research on sex education targets teenagers, a group that wants and needs accurate, complete and unbiased information about sex, given that a significant proportion of adolescents engage in sexual activity. In 2005, 43 per cent of Canadian teens aged 15 to 19 reported that they had had sexual intercourse at least once. Eight per cent of teens reported having had sexual intercourse before they were 15 years old.

The effectiveness of most sexual health interventions is not evaluated. The research also has relatively weak research designs, such as poor use of control groups. However, here are some conclusions:

• Adolescents who receive comprehensive sex education have a lower risk of pregnancy than those who receive abstinence-only or no sex education. Comprehensive sex education includes information on birth control and on prevention of sexually transmitted diseases as well as abstinence messages.

• Programs that focus on abstinence without discussing safer sex behaviours do not seem to reduce HIV risk. Some abstinence-only programs can decrease teens' sexual behaviours, although the effects are modest and short term.

• Sex education programs often ignore the subject of non-heterosexual orientations (i.e. homosexual, bisexual, transgendered).

• Many students with disabilities receive poor sex education services or may be excluded entirely.

• Using peers to deliver sexual health education to young people does not seem to increase condom use or reduce the odds of pregnancy or of having more partners.

Parents can support their children at home through open discussion of information about sex, and by reinforcing messages about condom use and other forms of birth control as well as around the risks of — and social pressures related to — sexual behaviour. Role-playing hypothetical situations can be a useful strategy.

If the child is not comfortable talking to his or her parents or vice versa, finding someone the child can talk openly with would be a good alternative.

WORKPLACE LAW

DANIEL LUBLIN
DAN@CANADAEMPLOYMENTLAWYER.COM
TWITTER: @DANLUBLIN

Following the positive feedback I received from last week's column, here are some more do's and don'ts for the workplace.

Do not assume that post-employment restrictions on competition will always be invalid. Many non-compete clauses are now being upheld with alarming regularity, despite the scope of the restriction.

Do not expect employers to pay for your stress leave. While they have an obligation to accommodate sicknesses, you must first demonstrate that you are actually sick. If your claim is dubious, you can be ordered to see a doctor to confirm that you are genuinely disabled from performing your job. The fact you are stressed will not always amount to a "disability."

Do protest pay cuts or other significant changes to your job and do so promptly. By biting your tongue you signal to the courts that you accepted or at least condoned the change, and worse, that your employer can impose future changes to your job with impunity.

Do not expect that your perception of "bullying" or "harassment" will easily be shared by your employer or the courts. Employees routinely complain that any aggressive actions of difficult bosses or co-workers amount to being harassed. However, often employees' perceptions are not founded in reality. Ironically, it is the misperception of harassment that actually makes these claims harder to prove. .

Nailing down a network

STUDENT VOICE

ERIN BURY
TALENTEGG.CA

SUBMITTED

▶ Erin Bury advises recent graduates to gravitate toward smaller companies if they're hoping for big responsibilities.

When I was in Carleton University's journalism program, I didn't really understand how difficult it would be to get a job when I got out of school, and I certainly didn't understand the value of networking and how much it mattered to career success.

I was attending school in Ottawa while living in Toronto during the summers, so it was difficult for me to find relevant summer positions in my field. This resulted in a string of fun summer jobs, none of which had anything to do with my goal of securing a job in public relations, journalism or communications upon graduation.

Luckily, my mom worked in public relations and she was able to set up some informational interviews for me during my fourth year reading week. This was the best thing I could have done, as it got my name out there and gave me a feel for what life at a PR agency was like.

One of the interviews I had, at Environics Communications, resulted in my first post-grad full-time position. But that wasn't until October and I graduated in April.

Those few months in between were really difficult. I applied for jobs constantly on sites like Workopolis, but it was like sending your resumé into an abyss.

I didn't have a good network in place, so I often relied on family contacts to get me in the door. While I appreciate the help my mom gave me, I hated that I was getting interviews based on nepotism.

Now I realize that most people land jobs based on referrals and that you have to take help whenever it's offered to you. While my contacts may have gotten me in the door, it was my smarts and ambition that got me the job.

I'm thankful that I got a full-time job shortly after graduation, but it certainly wouldn't have happened like it did without some pre-graduation networking, and introductions from trusted contacts.

TALENTEGG.CA, CANADA'S ONLINE CAREER RESOURCE FOR STUDENTS AND RECENT GRADS, WANTS TO HEAR YOUR STUDENT VOICE. SHARE IT AT TALENTEGG.CA.

Where Erin is now

I'm now working as the community manager at Sprouter.com, a small technology startup focused on providing expert answers to entrepreneurship questions. I handle all of the communications, PR, marketing, social media strategy, events, and a whole whack of other stuff. It's been an amazing experience. I advise any new graduates to get a job at a small company. You'll get so much experience, and you really get a sense of accomplishment.

What I learned

Key take-aways from Erin's experience:

- Don't wait until your last year to get work experience in your field. Start as early as possible – even in first year. The experience will look great on your resumé and, more importantly, you'll meet many people who might hire you after graduation.
- Ask people in your network to help you find a job – even your mom. Although there's a negative stigma surrounding so-called nepotism, it's one of the most effective ways to find work.

CANUCKS GAME DAY

SCOTT RINTOUL
VANCOUVER@METRONEWS.CA

DARRYL DYCK/THE CANADIAN PRESS

▶ Manny Malhotra, left, sits on the bench with teammate Raffi Torres during an optional practice on Monday.

Will Manny return?

It won't happen tonight. It might not happen at all. But with each passing day, Manny Malhotra looks like more of a possibility to return to the ice this season should the Canucks advance to the Stanley Cup Final.

Malhotra has not been cleared for contact and did not participate in most of the team's drills at UBC yesterday, but he did skate in full gear with the club for the first time since taking a puck in the eye on March 16.

"I want him around the team," Canucks coach Alain Vigneault told reporters yesterday. "It's that simple. We're not going to discuss his physical situation, his eye."

Vigneault wouldn't speculate on a possible return date for the centre.

Malhotra still has a number of hurdles to clear, but there is at least a chance he'll lace 'em up in a playoff game.

Of course, Vancouver has more immediate issues to deal with as a hungry Sharks squad is expected tonight at Rogers Arena. San Jose coach Todd McClellan is confident his squad will be "immensely better" in the rematch after a less than stellar performance in Game 1.

Jolting Joe

Ryan Kesler revealed that Joe Thornton challenged him to a fight on the opening faceoff of the series, an invitation Kesler laughed at. "Why not? Let's start this series off with a bang," responded Thornton when queried about the non-incident.

Depth charge

The Sharks appear to have the advantage when it comes to depth up front, but it was the Canucks' third line of Maxim Lapierre, Raffi Torres and Jannik Hansen that was the difference in Sunday's victory. The trio combined for one goal, three points and 10 hits in the opener.

Lost leads

Despite making it to the NHL's final four, San Jose has struggled in the third period this post-season. In their past five games, the Sharks have been outscored 10 to four in the final frame and have squandered third-period leads in four of those contests.

HARRY HOW/GETTY IMAGES

Power failure

Game 1 marked the first time the Sharks have lost a game when scoring a power-play goal in these playoffs. Though San Jose's lone man advantage was productive, this was the also the first time the Sharks have not been afforded multiple power-play chances during the post-season.

Mobile, puck-moving defencemen vex Sharks

A puck-savvy, fluid defence is one of the reasons why the Vancouver Canucks scored more goals than any other team in the regular season.

The Canucks offensive engine is fuelled by a group of mobile defencemen who can move the puck quickly and are not afraid to jump into the play when given the chance.

"From Day 1 this year they have been the backbone of our team," captain Henrik Sedin said yesterday after practice.

SHARKS | CANUCKS

▶ Time: 6 p.m.
Channel: CBC

"They move the puck well. You need your defence to help you offensively. They're going to be the guys to make the first pass. They're going to join the rush. If you don't have that, it's tough to score in this league."

Putting a road block in front of Vancouver's defencemen is something the San Jose Sharks will need to do when they face the Canucks in Game 2 of the Western Conference final tonight. The Sharks lost Sunday's opening game 3-2.

With the Sharks clinging to a 2-1 lead in the third period, Vancouver defenceman Kevin Bieksa took a pass from Alex Burrows and ripped the tying goal past netminder Antti Niemi.

"Offence from our defence has been a big part of our team's success all year," said Bieksa, who has two goals and three assists in the playoffs. "We have six guys that can do it pretty regularly.

"It's just a matter of reading when the right time is."

Dan Hamhuis, Bieksa's defensive partner, says having a defenceman join the rush is one more body the opposition has to deal with. It can also open up more space for Canuck snipers like Daniel Sedin and Ryan Kesler.

"Teams play so well defensively in the playoffs, it makes it hard for our forwards," said Hamhuis.

"If we can create an extra option out there for them, like Kevin did last game, it sometimes can create some good offence."

Lumsden chooses sled over gridiron

Jesse Lumsden decided one foot in bobsled and the other in the Canadian Football League won't allow him to step onto the podium at the 2014 Winter Olympics.

The 28-year-old Canadian running back confirmed yesterday he had closed the door on his football career to concentrate on moving from the back of the bobsled to the front.

Once considered Canada's best running back when healthy, Lumsden wants to become the country's top bobsled pilot and win a gold medal in 2014.

He was a brakeman for Pierre Lueders at the 2010 Winter Games, finishing fifth in the two-man event and seventh in the four-man race.

"I realized how technical the sport is, how precise it is and how good you have to be to be fast," Lumsden said during a news conference at Canada Olympic Park. "That's the goal. It's not to get down the hill anymore. It's to be fast.

"When I realized that, I realized I had to put my heart and soul into the endeavour. I don't want to just place and just get by. For me to be No. 1 in the world, it's going to require my full attention."

The six-foot-three, 228-pound Edmonton native won the 2004 Hec Crighton Trophy with McMaster as the top player in Canadian university football. He was drafted by the Hamilton Tiger-Cats.

But his pro career was star-crossed with injuries.

Lumsden had 1,842 rushing yards — most of them in four seasons with Hamilton — and 10 touchdowns during his CFL career.

Seguin leads way as B's even series

Rookie breaks out as Boston snaps Tampa Bay's eight-game win streak

Tyler Seguin had two goals and two assists as the Boston Bruins fed off the energy of the recently promoted rookie to beat the Tampa Bay Lightning 6-5 and tie the Eastern Conference final 1-1 last night.

Boston earned a split at home and has now won nine of its last 11 games.

The 19-year-old Seguin, the second pick in last year's draft, was benched for the first 11 playoff games because of perceived defensive shortcomings. He rejoined the lineup for the series opener, getting a goal and an assist, when Patrice Bergeron sat out because of a mild concussion.

Last night, with Bergeron still sidelined, Seguin tied it at 2-2 just 48 seconds into the second period then made it 4-2 at 6:30. Vincent Lecavalier cut the Lightning's deficit to 4-3 with a power-play goal at 7:48, but Seguin set up two goals by Michael Ryder that put Boston on top 6-3 entering the third.

Steven Stamkos and Dominic Moore scored in the final period for the Lightning.

Adam Hall gave the Lightning a 1-0 lead 13 seconds after the opening faceoff, the quickest goal in the team's playoff history.

Nathan Horton tied Game 2 with a power-play goal at 13:58, but the Lightning took a 2-1 lead when Martin St. Louis scored with seven seconds left in the first period.

The Bruins came out aggressively in the second period and scored five goals.

Seguin started the barrage when he took a pass from Ryder at his blue-line and used exceptional speed to race between defencemen Randy Jones and Victor Hedman. He went in alone on Dwayne Roloson, cut from right to left, and lifted a backhander over the sprawling goalie.

Clowe says it's time for Sharks to get physical

Ryane Clowe vows the Vancouver Canucks won't get off as easy in Game 2 of the Western Conference final.

The rugged forward says Canucks defencemen can expect to be pounded into the end boards while retrieving pucks from now on.

That didn't happen enough in Vancouver's 3-2 victory in Game 1 and Clowe, a six-foot-two, 220-pound left-winger, intends to do something about it tonight (CBC, 6 p.m.).

"We've obviously got big forwards and (delivering hits) is definitely a part of my game," said Clowe.

"We obviously weren't very good the other night. We've got to get skating, we've got to get physical."
SHARKS FOWARD DANY HEATLEY

Yet the Fermeuse, N.L., native has hands soft enough to generate four goals and 13 points this post-season to tie Joe Thornton for the team lead.

"Last game it was just one of those games where it was tough to get ... rhythm or momentum going," Clowe said.

"That comes off a lot of things but a lot of it has to do with wearing them down. That's a big part of my game and we've got a lot of forwards 220-plus."

Whitecaps near full strength heading into game against Toronto FC

MATT KIELTYKA

▶ Vancouver's Omar Salgado tries to get a head on the ball on Saturday in a game against New England.

Talk about timing.

For the first time in this early season, the Vancouver Whitecaps will be fielding a squad that is near full fitness … just in time for the Nutrilite Canadian Championship final.

Injuries, travel, international duty, suspensions and a gruelling schedule have all conspired against Teitur Thordarson's side.

It's also armed him with an excess of excuses with the team struggling at the bottom of the Major League Soccer Western Conference with a 1-5-5 record.

"We have been a little bit unlucky in those terms," the manager said during a press conference yesterday. "We have had a different start to the season than what we would have liked."

But now with just Atiba Harris and John Thorrington unavailable, Thordarson finally has a complete side at his disposal.

It means all excuses are off the table when the Whitecaps host Toronto FC in the first leg of the national championship tonight at Empire Stadium.

The coach relishes the challenge.

"I'm actually very much looking forward to the game (today), and the games coming up," he said. "We are about to get most of the players healthy. We are getting where we were hoping to be from the start."

Thordarson rested most of his regular starters in last Saturday's MLS away match in New England so they'd be ready for Toronto.

Yesterday, he re-emphasized the importance of the Voyageurs Cup and the opportunity to represent Canada in the CONCACAF Champions League.

"The tournament has always been a big importance for us … a big goal," he said. "No matter how we've been doing in the league, it would have stayed that way."

The first leg of the Nutrilite Canadian Championship kicks off at 7 p.m.

The return leg at BMO Field in Toronto is scheduled for 5 p.m. May 25.

Both games will be televised live on Rogers Sportsnet.

Engine

The Veloster's 138-horsepower 1.6-litre engine has the same output as the previous Elantra's 1.8-litre engine, however numerous technological improvements have enabled many automakers, including Hyundai, to reduce engine displacement to improve fuel economy without losing any power.

Interior

The interior provides seating for four passengers and has easy-to-read gauges and control-panel knobs for the driver.

In terms of optional features, there is an upgraded interior, push-button start, up-level 450-watt sound package, navigation system, panoramic sunroof and 18-inch alloy wheels (17-inch alloys are standard).

Rear door

The key design element of the Veloster is the well-camouflaged full-sized front-hinged rear door.

It differs from other rear-hinged openings (such as those found on the Mazda RX-8 or the retired Saturn coupe) in that it can be accessed from the outside or inside and doesn't require the front passenger door to be unlatched first.

▶ The back section of the Veloster is haunched up to make head room for the rear passengers. The design was apparently inspired by sport motorcycles. Honestly, not that obvious.

Hyundai's next game-changer

MALCOLM GUNN
DRIVE@METRONEWS.CA
WHEELBASE MEDIA

There's something rather odd going on at Hyundai these days. It's name is Veloster and it has three different-sized passenger doors.

Yes, the 2012 Veloster is an oddity.

The lack of portal symmetry certainly sets it apart from virtually anything else on the road, which is exactly what Hyundai's designers have been striving for lately.

When you consider how dramatically different the latest Sonata and Elantra sedans appear from their respective mainstream peers, it was almost a forgone conclusion that shredding the styling envelope would continue.

The Veloster, available late this summer, is the slow-to-arrive replacement for the Tiburon sport coupe that was phased out following the 2008 model year.

Hyundai always planned to replace its entry-level "shark" (that's what Tiburon means in Spanish), but it first focused on launching the upstart Genesis coupe that runs in the same rear-wheel-drive class as the Ford Mustang, Chevy Camaro and Dodge Challenger, but without the V8 option, of course.

By comparison, the front-wheel-drive Veloster plays in a different sandbox where affordability and fuel economy are as important as eye-catching styling.

In all three areas, the Veloster could become a serious category crusher.

The Veloster will likely become another game-changing model for Hyundai. Count this as yet another groundbreaking design in the company's recent automotive arsenal.

▶ You could mistake this interior for the one in the Elantra and that's hardly a bad thing.

▶ Looking a bit like a wounded bird, the Veloster's passenger side B pillar, which mounts the rear door, is a noticeable distance ahead of the driver's side B pillar. Conversely, that means the driver's side door is much longer than the passenger-side front door.

- Engine (hp): 1.6-litre DOHC I4 (138).
- Transmission: Six-speed manual; six-speed manual with automatic clutch.
- Market position: Considered a more direct replacement for the Tiburon than the Genesis Coupe was. Smaller than the Genesis and still sporty — certainly when compared with the Accent — with efficient four-cylinder power.
- Stats: L/100 km (city/hwy) 7.5/5.0 (est. DCT).

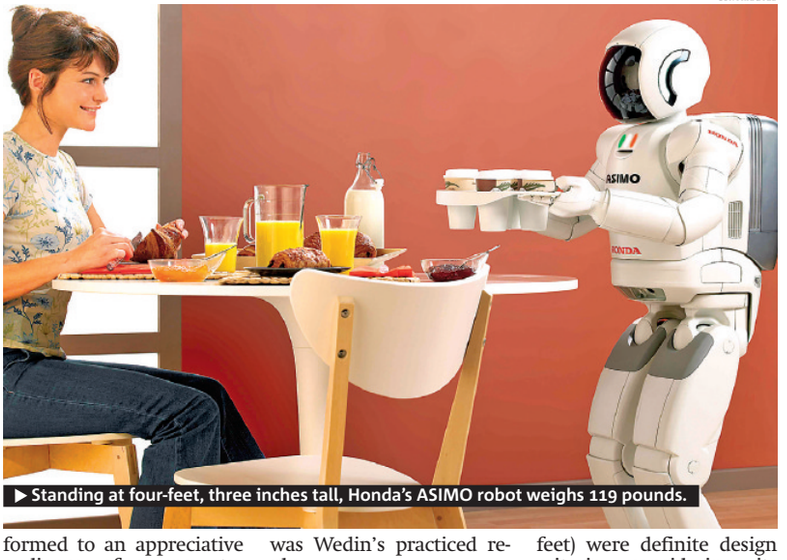
HONDA'S ASIMO ROBOT IS HIGH TECH ... AND CUTE

AUTO PILOT

MIKE GOETZ
DRIVE
@METRONEWS.CA

CONTRIBUTED



▶ Standing at four-feet, three inches tall, Honda's ASIMO robot weighs 119 pounds.

Honda designs and builds a lot of vehicles. Honda has also developed ASIMO, one of the world's most advanced humanoid robots.

At first blush it doesn't seem like the two enterprises have much in common. Like Tim Hortons having a division that builds canoes.

But according to Honda, the thing that binds cars and trucks, motorcycles, the new HondaJet, and humanoid robots all together is that they all contribute to human "mobility."

ASIMO is designed to be a helper to people who have limited mobility, such as those confined to wheelchairs and beds.

I know what you're thinking — can ASIMO help me if I'm just lazy? I don't see why not. Like, how's it going to know?

I had a chance to see ASIMO last week, at its visit to the Ontario Science Centre in Toronto, where it performed to an appreciative audience of young students.

Or maybe the students were just happy to get the day off from school.

Either way, they applauded and cheered when ASIMO responded to questions from his handler, kicked a soccer ball, stood on one leg, walked up and down a flight of steps and ran across the stage.

Very impressive indeed.

After the "performance," ASIMO was joined on stage by Eric Wedin, project leader of the ASIMO team, to take some questions from the students, and one of the first questions went right to the heart of the matter: "How much money has Honda spent on ASIMO?"

"ASIMO is a priceless piece of R&D technology," was Wedin's practiced reply.

Other questions were, in turn, insightful and slightly off the wall. I preferred those in the latter group, like … "Can ASIMO swim?"… "Can ASIMO travel on rough ground?" … "Could you put a jet-pack on ASIMO?"

The subtext of this line of questioning seemed, to me at least, that the youngsters had no pressing need for ASIMO's help around the kitchen, but would love to pal around with a mini Ironman that would give you some 'cred around the neighbourhood. Why make a robot if it can't shoot lasers?

Later, I asked Wedin to expound on the decision to make ASIMO so cute.

He said cuteness and a small scale (just over four feet) were definite design criteria, considering its "people helper" role.

At that height it can relate better at eye-level to immobilized individuals. Makes sense… Who wants a seven-foot robot bringing you some porridge?

Robots don't have to be humanoid. In fact, they might be more useful and capable if they took on some other form.

According to Wedin, ASIMO is humanoid because of the comfort factor and because it needs to operate in environments that have been optimized for humanoids — like homes, schools and hospitals.

The human form obviously works too, so it's not the worst one to research — even if your business model is currently based on wheeled devices.

Welcome to the Light Club

The first rule of Light Club is that every gram counts ... the second rule of Light Club is that every gram counts

JOE KNYCHA
WHEELBASE MEDIA
DRIVE@METRONEWS.CA

Three words — every gram counts — frame the engineering mindset at Audi these days as it delves into the science of lightweight construction and its effects on vehicle safety, performance, efficiency and emissions.

But simple words don't always translate into easy action.

Achieving lightness has become incredibly complex business.

In addition to reducing the weight of individual components and systems, carbon-fibre-reinforced plastics (CFRPs) are joining aluminum and ultra-high-strength steels to make vehicle bodies that are not just lighter, but almost indestructible.

CFRPs and exotic resins are layered, molded, pressed, formed and baked in giant ovens into components that are stronger than steel but weigh almost half as much.

The new plastics do not lend themselves easily to mass production and working with carbon fibre has traditionally been both time — and labour-intensive.

40%

The body of Audi's newest A8 limousine is 40 per cent lighter, and considerably stronger, than if it were made of steel.

But Audi says it has made breakthroughs in dealing with the new-age plastics.

A lighter body is the starting point for weight reductions on other parts of the car as engineers work to shave "every possible gram" (without compromising durability or function) from the drivetrain, suspension, passenger compartment, electrical system and the electronics.

Lightweight construction is a "strategic" policy that Audi's competitors are only now beginning to adopt, said Alois Feldschmid, head of total vehicle development.

"A lighter car accelerates, brakes and corners better and has sustainable economic and ecological results."

In an industry where the rule has been that vehicles get bigger and heavier over time, Audi is attempting "reversing the weight spiral."

The company has developed "competence" over the past 30 years in the use of combined materials, said Feldschmid.

It has incorporated carbon fibre into its cars since first using it for body parts on the original 1980 Audi Quattro.

Different materials with different strengths require new technologies to join them, not only in metal-on-metal applications, but also metal-on-plastic, said Dr. Klaus Koglin, head of technical development.

▶ Carbon fibre begins as a pliable product with the resin built right in. It's formed into a mold, by hand, put into a plastic bag and all the air is drawn out. It's perfectly suited to the low-volume, high-performance requirements of an ultra-expensive sports car such as the Lamborghini Aventador.

▶ The Lamborghini Aventador LP700-4's entire carbon-fibre body shell (above) weighs 147 kilograms. Below is a shot of the finished product.

Lambo lightness

▶ In Sant'Agata Bolognese, Italy, Audi subsidiary Lamborghini — the maker of exotic sports cars — has incorporated into its new flagship Aventador LP700-4, for the first time in any series production road vehicle, a full monocoque body structure made entirely from carbon fibre.

▶ Rather than a body that sits on a separate frame, a monocoque design uses the body as the frame structure.

▶ In a process that is still labour intensive and expensive, Lamborghini has taken the time required to complete a full body-in-white (the unpainted vehicle's basic body structure, including sheet metal but minus bolt-on components, like doors) to just over 120 hours from several weeks.

▶ The entire "shell" weighs just 147 kilograms yet is so rigid that any bending or twisting of the structure under conditions of extreme loading is virtually non-existent and undetectable by humans.

▶ Stiffness is crucial for safety as well as providing a platform for razor-sharp handling where the suspension does not have to compensate for a flimsy chassis.

Today's horoscope

For today's crossword answers and for expanded horoscopes, go to metronews.ca

♈ Aries March 21-April 20 Enjoy yourself, but don't let your social life negatively impact business.

♉ Taurus April 21-May 21 Tell those who interfere in your affairs that you will resolve your own problems in your own way.

♊ Gemini May 22-June 21 Principles may be more important than profit but you cannot afford to ignore what a negative result might mean for your finances.

♋ Cancer June 22-July 22 A delay in a project is likely. Don't get angry, it may work in your favour.

♌ Leo July 23-Aug.23 You have a reputation for trustworthiness — don't do anything to jeopardize it.

♍ Virgo Aug. 24- Sept. 22 If you want to move up in the world, you have to be more open with those who can help you make it happen.

♎ Libra Sept. 23-Oct. 23 When the going is tough you know what needs to be done. Can you get motivated when the going is easy?

♏ Scorpio Oct. 24-Nov. 22 Let go of the past. The less you hold on to now, the more you will gain later on.

♐ Sagittarius Nov. 23-Dec. 21 Leave no one in any doubt about how you feel — good or bad.

♑ Capricorn Dec. 22-Jan. 20 . The planets urge you to stop thinking merely in terms of winning and losing. Life is not a zero sum game.

♒ Aquarius Jan. 21-Feb. 18 There is no reason why you should be modest about what you have achieved. Shout about it.

♓ Pisces Feb. 19-March 20. When you give everything you have the right to demand a lot, too. SALLY BROMPTON
